Proofing Summary:

Hi Michael! I'm Taylor, your tutor today!

Thank you for submitting your annotated bibliography. I have reviewed your submission and have several suggestions that will help you revise.

Strengths: You are off to a good start! You have the basic understanding of what is required in an annotated bibliography, and have good summaries of each of the sources.

Suggestions:

1. thesis statement – Your thesis statement was unclear. For this assignment the introduction paragraph should end with a thesis statement that includes the societal problem, your proposed solution to the societal problem and also the positive/negative ethical outcome of the solution.

Consider following this format for your thesis:

(Your issue) should/should not _____. Instead, we should (insert your solutions to the problem). These solutions create (insert the positive and negative ethical implications).

2. developing paragraphs – Please make sure that you are fully developing your explanation to how each source will benefit your paper, and what information you have learned from reading the article.

3. Paper format – Remember that your references in your annotated bibliography should be alphabetized, just like they are on your references page. Also, Please fix your title page and headers. Unfortunately your title page and headers are not done according to Ashford's APA guidelines. I suggest using the APA template to get your title page, headers, and page numbers correctly formatted. For a link to the template, click here: <http://tinyurl.com/zmy47el>

For help using the template, please click here: <http://tinyurl.com/zqsepau>

4. APA citations - Citing sources - An in-text citation should include the author's last name, the year, and if citing a direct quote, a page number. (Author, year, p. #). If no author is provided, you would have the title of the piece instead: ("Title of article," year). If no year is provided, you will include n.d. for no date: (Author, n.d.). If no page numbers are provided, you will use the paragraph number: (Author, year, para. #).

Here are two ways that you can set up a citation, which works for quoting or for summarizing and paraphrasing:

a. As LastName (year) states, "quote" or paraphrase (p.#).

b. "Quote" or paraphrase (LastName, Year, p.#).

For more help with this, use this guide: <http://tinyurl.com/jf6e9qev>

Use my suggestions as a starting point for the revision process. Also, please note that I have not edited or proofread the entire draft for minor errors, but rather, focused on overall concerns such as idea development. Also, remember that for APA, it is required that you have a running head in the top left of this page. Please see this model for assistance, and pay close attention to capitalization:

Running head: TITLE OF PAPER

According to APA, the page number should be in the top right corner of every page.

Please recall that for APA formatted papers, the title of your paper, your name, your institution information, etc, should be centered in the middle of your title page.

The refugee crisis has protracted form a long time and is becoming a serious issue that needs to be addressed before it worsens further. Refugees are a burden to the host countries. The presence of refugees n the host nations put uncalled pressure on the limited facilities available in Lebanon such as health-care system and economy, housing, education system and other social amenities. On the other hand, refugees suffer from abject deskilling and unemployment and also face escalated levels of discrimination. Although the effects of the global refugee crisis are evident, no feasible solution has been achieved so far. To combat the global refugee crisis, further research is needed, cooperation of relevant state parties and international communities and restructuring and reformation of the migration and protection policies for refugees.

Bibliography

Refaat, M. M., & Mohanna, K. (2013). Syrian refugees in Lebanon: facts and solutions. The Lancet, 382(9894), 763-764

Your annotated bibliography should be organized by your references in alphabetical order. Please make sure that you organize this as it is required by APA format.

This article articulates that thousands and thousands of Syrian refugees who are registered by the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) live in Lebanon. According to Refaat and Mohanna (2013) this had lead to an increase of the Lebanon's population by over 25% (p. 763). Unfortunately, just as expected, the living conditions of the homeless refugees are pathetic. Despite the fact that the two populations live amicably, the presence of the refugees in Lebanon puts undue pressure on the limited facilities available in Lebanon such as health-care system and economy, housing, education system and other social amenities. This transforms from Syrian Refugees Crisis to Lebanese–Syrian Crisis. The foreign aid cannot effectively address the humanitarian crisis and thus there is need for a substantial solution (Refaat and Mohanna, 2013, P.763). The authors of this article recommend solutions that can help address the crisis. One of them is the Lebanon Government to implement a complete emergency plan to address the social, health, education, economic (Refaat and Mohanna, 2013, P.763). The other solution according to solution Refaat and Mohanna (2013) is putting in place an emergency plan to tackle political instability and insecurity during resettlement (p.173).

This word is an adjective, not a verb. Thus, it is used as a descriptive word, not an action word. Please rephrase this sentence for it to make sense.

The introduction paragraph should end with a thesis statement that includes the societal problem, your proposed solution to the societal problem and also the positive/negative ethical outcome of the solution. Consider following this format for your thesis: (Your issue) should/should not _____. Instead, we should (insert your solutions to the problem). These solutions create (insert the positive and negative ethical implications).

This source is important for my final argumentative essay because it articulates the plight of refugees and gives some possible solutions of global refugee crisis.

Remember that your explanation to how you can use this information should be at least a paragraph (5 sentences) long. Take this time to evaluate the source and take information that will be useful for your paper.

Long, K. (2013). When refugees stopped being migrants: Movement, labour and humanitarian protection. Migration Studies, mns001.

In this article, Long highlights that refugee protection and resettlement is a global humanitarian crisis (2013). The movement of people across boundaries by immigration and seeking asylum complicates the matter because it is not easy to keep separate refugee and immigrant schemes (Long, 2013). Most host countries prohibit refugees from accessing employment. Most countries restrict movement of refugees both legally and physically to prevent refugees from mixing and interacting with the local communities. As a result of this discrimination and poverty, the refugees cannot fully enjoy their socioeconomic rights and are thus excluded from labor markets. As a result, refugees suffer from abject deskilling and unemployment (Long, 2013). As a solution, Long suggests that national immigration and protection laws that prohibit the movement and employment of refugees will need to be restructured and reformed. Secondly, Long recommends that host countries need to implement effective and ethical labor migration laws for refugees (2013).

This phrase is a bit repetitive as the sentence prior to it starts off almost the same way. Consider rephrasing this so that it gives your papers more variety.

Remember that for APA, the publication year goes directly after the author's name. Example, Jones (2014),

This article will help me understand the issues that make handling and solving the refugee crisis harder.

Özden, S. (2013). Syrian refugees in Turkey.

Is there publication information or information that states what kind of source this is (print, web, etc)?

In this study, the author claims that insurrections in Syria have been on the rise over the past few years (Özden, 2013). The result of the political uprising is massive exodus from Syria to neighboring countries. Most of the refugees are running away from violence and psychological turmoil and hence many migrate to other countries to seek for asylum. The refugee crisis in Syria is worsening sharply and its effects are being felt not only in Syria neighbors but across Europe (Özden, 2013). Syria's crisis can be blamed for alarming rate of displacement in the region and the consequential humanitarian crisis. Given the crisis has no sign of dwindling anytime soon, the projected number of Syrians fleeing their country to seek refuge will only increase. With the influx of large numbers of Syrians into neighboring countries such as Turkey, discrimination has skyrocketed. The Turkish government has adopted a hostile position regarding the Syrian's hostile reigning regime. The security of Turkey has deteriorated over the course of time as a result of refugee's presence in the country (Özden, 2013).

This article will help me understand the effects of refugees presence on the host countries. Can you elaborate a bit more? How will this article help you?

İçduygu, A. (2015). Syrian refugees in Turkey. The Long Road Ahead/A. İçduygu, Transatlantic Council on Migration, Migration Policy Institute. –[CIIIA].

Please see my previous comment about having the publication year after the author's name. İçduygu the author of this article states that Turkey has the highest population of Syrian refugees globally partly because of its open receptive policy and temporary protection policy (2015). Turkey's temporary protection policy opens avenue for eventual resettlement of the refugees not only in Turkey but also all over the world. Hosting the refugees has both positive and negative effects on both Turkey and the surrounding countries. The Syrian refugee crisis has protracted contrary to the expectations causing anti-migrant sentiments to sprang up. This problem is not only in Turkey but all over the world. One of the solutions İçduygu proposes is adopting policies for socio-cultural and labor market integration (İçduygu, 2013). Another solution is helping the hosting countries such as turkey expand its facilities and social amenities so that they can incase their absorption capacity. The last strategy proposed in this article is for NGOs and global entities should prepare for more refugee floes and arrange to share the burden of the eventual refugee flow (İçduygu, 2013).

This article contains some ideas that are useful in my argumentative essay because it outines some possible solutions to the global refugee crisis

Such as...? Please make sure to develop your ideas fully.

Azad, A., & Jasmin, F. (2013). Durable solutions to the protracted refugee situation: The case of Rohingyas in Bangladesh. Journal of Indian Research, 1(4), 25-35. Recall that the titles of journals are italicized.

Azad and Jasmin (2013) state that refugees all over the world are poverty stricken, suffering, unemployed, discriminated against and disrespected. Resources of the host nations become strained while unnecessary pressure is put on both financial and physical resources (Azad and Jasmin, 2013). In addition, the protracted refugee crisis cripples efforts of the international community to deliver on key aid commitments such as disease control, poverty elimination and economic growth. The global refugee crisis has protracted for a long time and no feasible long term solution has ever been put in place. The lasting ultimate solution to the global refugee crisis rests on the political good-will of all key stakeholder NGOs, state parties and international bodies.

This article articulates the problems refugee bring to the host nations and also proposes one of the most realistic solutions to the crisis. How will you use this information in your paper?
