Week 3 Assignment - The Role of IGOs in Global Civil Society

Overview

IGOs are made up of member governments, and they may be global, regional, or issue focused. An IGO focusses on goals and policies aligned with its mission. In this assignment, you will examine IGOs, their formation, their functions, their differences from NGOs, and their effectiveness.

Instructions

Write a 3–4 page paper about the following:

1. Define IGOs and NGOs. Compare their roles in global civil society.
2. Explain why IGOs that are formed by treaties are more advantageous and effective than a grouping of sovereign nations. Provide examples.
3. IGOs also serve several basic functions that enhance cooperation. Choose two of the following IGOs and discuss their functions. Explore their role in international policymaking.
 - United Nations.
 - Organization of American States.
 - North Atlantic Treaty Organization.
 - World Health Organization.
4. Describe three examples where IGOs have become increasingly prominent. Include examples such as facilitating conflict resolution between states, handling human rights violations, and dealing with impossible dilemmas where there is no positive outcome or no solution within conflicting states.
5. Use at least four (two government and two peer-reviewed scholarly) sources to support your writing. For this assignment, government resources
